

- Monday 3*
SOU printed handbills and Tickets for several of their benefits, particularly that the play called the Recruiting Officer and the Entertainment called Flora, or Hob in the Well would be performed on Monday Night Last at Yeates Old Theatre in the Bowling Green in Southwark and Several Gentlemen and Ladies were prevailed on and paid for many tickets and went in coaches expecting to see and hear the proposed entertainments but the said strollers neither performed nor returned the money advanced for such tickets though demanded, this Advertisement is therefore humbly recommended to the serious consideration of the justices of the peace for the said county of Surrey and also to give a friendly caution to unwary people not to be imposed upon by such persons in the future.—Daily Advertiser, 8 Nov. [See 27 Nov. at Hay.]
- On Tuesday last the Court Leets for the Town and Borough of Southwark . . . Likewise directed the Constables to use their utmost Endeavours toward suppressing the Acting of Plays . . . and avoiding all unlawful Games and Plays . . . By the Statue, no Plays to be acted but in Westminster, or Place of his Majesty's Residence, on forfeit of £50.—London Courant, 6 Nov.

- COMMENT. Horace Walpole to Montagu, 3 Nov.: I shall be with you at the end of the week, but just now I am under the maidenhead-palpitation of an author; my Epilogue will, I believe, be spoke tomorrow night, and I flatter myself I shall have no faults to answer for but what are in it, for I have kept secret whose it is. It is now gone to be licensed, but as the Lord Chamberlain is mentioned, though rather to his honour it is possible it may be refused, as they are apt to think at the Office, that the Duke of Grafton can't be mentioned but in ridicule.—Horace Walpole's Correspondence with George Montagu, 1, 48. Receipts: £119 11.

 COMMENT. Paid Quin on account £100. Gilbert Walmesley to Garrick, 3 Nov.: I see by the prints you are engaged with Mr Rich. I hope you will take care not to hurt your health by playing more than you can well bear. . . . But I must not forget to tell you what Lord Chesterfield says of you. He says you are not only the best tragedian now in the world, but the best, he believes, that ever was in the world; but he does not like your comedy, and particularly objects to your playing Bayes, which he says is a serious solemn character and that you mistake it. He spoke much in praise of Barry's handsome figure, but made a joke of his rivaling or hurting you.—Boaden, Private Correspondence of Garrick, I, 44. Receipts: £170 9s.
