[The Westminster Magazine, Feb., p. 75, contained an article on the "Origin of Oratorios," followed by one on the Musical Powers of Handel, particularly relating to his Oratorios. The Morning Chronicle for 24 Feb. commented as follows on Miss Linley's performance in Acis and Galatea: "Miss Linley . . . gave every delight that the ear, the heart, or understanding could receive from Music . . . Miss Linley's manner of delivering Recitative is peculiarly distinct and sensible; a circumstance of infinite importance in a performance of this nature. Her voice is clear and melodious, and capable of truest expression as was peculiarly evident in the song of 'Must I my Acis still bemoan?' . . . Their Majesties' presence and apparent satisfaction lead us to hope that the Royal countenance and encouragement will never again be withdrawn to grace the innovations of foreigners on the only musical ground which is left for English genius to take root and flourish" (Quoted in Hampden, Journal).]
- CG JUDAS MACCABAEUS. Cast not listed. Parts were: Judas, Israelite Man, Israelite Woman, Chorus, Simon (Brother to Judas), Messenger, Eupolemus (Jewish Ambassador to Rome). Principal Vocal parts by Vernon, Champness, Leoni, Mrs Wrighten, Mrs Weichsel.

Larpent MS 404 confirms these names and adds the following parts: Carlos; Tom Traverse; Sam Snivel; Zephyr, Libs, and Boreas (Winds); Flos (a Fairy); Tadpole (a Witch); Spirit of a Druid; Cornelia.] CG
COMMENT. Afterpiece: A New Masque [by Capt. Edward Thompson] never perform'd. With New Music, Dresses, Scenery, and Decorations. The Music composed by Fisher. The Scenes painted by Dall and Carver. Books of the songs to be had at the Theatre. [The Westminster Magazine for March also lists Boreas – Reinhold; Carlos – DuBellamy; Traverse – Mahon; Druid – L'Estrange, and tells the story of the play. The reviewer did not approve of the piece, since for him it lacked unbounded fire of fancy, originality of idea, language, and character. He approved of Fisher's music.]

(Treasurer's Book). [N. B. Bickerstaff the author was living in exile presumably in St Malo, France. Garrick knew his address from a letter 24 June 1772. Whether the funds were forwarded to him, no record seems to exist. Presumably they were.] Receipts: £218 15s. (Treasurer's Book).
- DOUGLAS. As 15 Jan., but Douglas now listed as Webster; Old Norval – Clarke. CG
Also THE SIRENS. As 26 Feb.
COMMENT. Benefit for Webster. Mr Barry being ill, the tragedy of King Lear oblig'd to be deferr'd. [A comment in Lloyd's Evening Post for 29 Feb. refers to an incident in CG this evening: "A fellow who sat on the sixth row of the Upper Gallery . . . threw a Keg (which he had brought full of liquor into the House) over the Gallery front. It fell upon a lady's head, who sat in that part of the Pit which was railed into the Boxes, but the Lady's hair being dress'd in high ton, the artifice mountain luckily prevented the mischief that otherwise might have
